Previous pages: component letters of an editioned wall drawing (Ethical Map, Chris Evans, 2012. 46 x 21 cm) executed on request in blue ink with adapted marker pen by Will Holder, who reckons that (following Marc Goethals' reading of Joseph Kosuth's Notebook on Water) in response to Donald Judd's statement (therein) that "The main virtue of geometric shapes is that they aren't organic, as all art otherwise is. A form that's neither geometric or organic would be a great discovery," Joseph replied: "It's language, Don."
